Classroom Protocols

ENGL 1A Course Content

Diversity: SJSU is a diverse campus. As such, our course is designed to include an emphasis on a diverse range of voices and viewpoints. We will engage in integrated reading and writing assignments to construct our own arguments on complex issues that generate meaningful public discussions.

Writing: Writing is at the heart of our class. Our exploration of writing will allow us to prepare ourselves and each other for academic and real-world writing scenarios. Assignments give students repeated practice in all phases of the writing process: prewriting, organizing, writing, revising, and editing. Our class requires a minimum of 8000 words, at least 4000 of which must be in revised final draft form. More specific descriptions and instructions will be distributed for all major assignments in class.

Reading: There will be a substantial amount of reading for our class, some of which will come from texts I select (listed below) and some of which will be from sources you locate.

Final Experience: We will compile a portfolio at the end of the semester that includes selected examples of your writing produced for our class, as well as materials from your RCW Canvas course. We will talk more about the portfolio later in the semester.

Time Commitment

Success in ENGL 1A is based on the expectation that students will spend, for each unit of credit, a minimum of 45 hours over the length of the course (normally three hours per unit per week) for instruction, preparation/studying, or course related activities, including but not limited to internships, labs, and clinical practica. Other course structures will have equivalent workload expectations as described in the syllabus.

Final Examination or Evaluation

In ENGL 1A, our learning culminates in a digital Reflection and Portfolio Assignment. In this assignment, we will gather samples of our writing that demonstrate our learning; we will write a reflection essay that explains what we have learned, how we learned it, and how we will use it in future learning; and we will submit our portfolio for consideration to other people in the first-year writing program. This is our chance to identify and articulate what we've learned and what we'll take forward with us into future learning/writing experiences.

Program Information

Welcome to this General Education course.

SJSU's General Education Program establishes a strong foundation of versatile skills, fosters curiosity about the world, promotes ethical judgment, and prepares students to engage and contribute responsibly and cooperatively in a multicultural, information-rich society. General education classes integrate areas of study and encourage progressively more complex and creative analysis, expression, and problem solving.

The General Education Program has three goals:

Goal 1: To develop students' core competencies for academic, personal, creative, and professional pursuits.

Goal 2: To enact the university's commitment to diversity, inclusion, and justice by ensuring that students have the knowledge and skills to serve and contribute to the well-being of local and global communities and the environment.

Goal 3: To offer students integrated, multidisciplinary, and innovative study in which they pose challenging questions, address complex issues, and develop cooperative and creative responses.

More information about the General Education Program Learning Outcomes (PLOs) can be found on the GE website \(https://sjsu.edu/general-education/ge-requirements/overview/learning-outcomes.php\).

Course Goals

What does it mean to be a writer of the 21st century? How can we adapt traditional methods of communication and persuasive rhetoric through modern means? Can we frame our reading, writing, and critical thinking process in a manner that perpetuates the spirit of play through a gamification and the use of digital media? This course aims to answer these questions while preparing students to effectively persuade in an ever-changing world of technology. As students contend with pillars of the writing process through multimodal means, they will embrace a personalized learning experience through the emphasis of digital literacy.

To practice rhetorical communication in a variety of modes, we'll practice writing in a range of diverse genres. In this course, you will explore an issue that matters to you through three major projects: a personal narrative/rhetorical analysis, an argumentative essay, and a multimodal presentation. Each writing project will refine an essential component of successful communication while introducing skills and strategies that are crucial for each task. Lastly, students will create digital translations of their texts and use rhetorical devices to connect with an intended audience to practice revision through genres.

In addition, shorter writing assignments and collaborative work supplement the goal of each project, intensifying rhetoric through a gamified lens. As we proceed through the writing process concerning each project, students will practice effective communication through the use of rhetorical appeals and gamified situations. From this perspective, we will analyze writing, reading, and thinking, as "players" within a distinct "game." Students will sharpen this perspective to catalyze active learning. Moreover, our examination of the writing process and its connection to metacognition will act as an assessment of our work and foster strategies for critical dexterity and adaptive learning.

Course Learning Outcomes (CLOs)

General Education Learning Outcomes (GELOs):

GE Area A2: Written Communication

Written Communication I courses cultivate an understanding of the writing process and the goals, dynamics, and genres of written communication, with special attention to the nature of writing at the university. A grade of C- or better designates that a student has successfully oriented reading and writing practice in English to support college level research and learning and to share learning with C- or better is a CSU graduation requirement.

GE Area A2 Learning Outcomes

Upon successful completion of an Area A2 course, students should be able to:

1. demonstrate knowledge and understanding of the content, context, effectiveness, and forms of written communication;
2. perform essential steps in the writing process (prewriting, organizing, composing, revising, and editing);
3. articulate an awareness of and write according to the rhetorical features of texts, such as purpose, audience, context, and rhetorical appeals;
4. integrate their ideas and those of others by synthesizing, explaining, analyzing, developing, and criticizing ideas effectively in several genres; and
5. demonstrate college-level language use, clarity, and grammatical abilities in writing.

Writing Practice: Students will write a minimum of 8000 words, at least 4000 of which must be in revised final draft form.

Course Materials

Students will not be required to purchase a textbook for this class.

Alternatively, we will be working with John Zimmer's "Rhetoric: The Public Speaking Game," an app available through Apple's App Store, or Google Play.

Reading assignments and texts will be provided via canvas. The reading scheduled in the syllabus will activate our understanding what defines good writing. With our study of genres and templates, we will examine how to adjust our writing and thinking to achieve a particular outcome. We'll also analyze each other's work as a means of how models of texts and reading influence the writing process. Since we'll be working with texts digitally, students should be prepared to bring a laptop or smart device to act as writing tools that will support collaborative work.

Other technology requirements / equipment / material

- Students will need access to a laptop/computer/smart device to access media during in class sessions.
- Students will also utilize a variety of digital applications to conduct writing activities, rhetorical exercises, and critical analysis with platforms such as Miro, Figjam, Hypothesis and more.
- Access to steady wi-fi for zoom sessions, office hours, and discussion board posts.

Course Requirements and Assignments

Students will write short posts in response to reading assignments alongside in class collaborative work and each major writing project. Each post should be around 250 words. Reflective writing assignments and discussion board posts account for 30% of the total grade. We will also compose three major writing projects in the critical analysis essay, the argumentative essay, and a multimodal presentation. Each project will be composed in stages and will be worth 20% of your grade. Lastly, a comprehensive project that synthesizes the learning goals will be assessed with the creation and submission of the e-portfolio.

All written work submitted in this course must be originally produced by you, the student. If you utilize an outside source, you must properly cite the source in the assignment.

Generative artificial intelligence tools—software that creates new text, images, computer code, audio, video, and other content—have become widely available. Well-known examples include ChatGPT for text and DALL•E for images. This policy governs all such tools, including those released during our semester together. You may use generative AI tools on assignments in this course, within the following limitations. If you do use generative AI tools on assignments in this class, you must properly document and credit the tools themselves. Cite the tool you used, following the pattern for computer software given in the specified style guide. Additionally, please include a brief description of how you used the tool. If you choose to use generative AI tools, please remember that they are typically trained on limited datasets that may be out of date. Additionally, generative AI datasets are trained on pre-existing material, including copyrighted material; therefore, relying on a generative AI tool may result in plagiarism or copyright violations. Finally, keep in mind that the goal of generative AI tools is to produce content that seems to have been produced by a human, not to produce accurate or reliable content; therefore, relying on a generative AI tool may result in your submission of inaccurate content. It is your responsibility—not the tool’s—to assure the quality, integrity, and accuracy of work you submit in any college course. If you use generative AI tools to complete assignments in this course, in ways that I have not explicitly authorized, I will apply the San Jose State University Code of Academic Integrity as appropriate to your specific case. In addition, you must be wary of unintentional plagiarism or fabrication of data. Please act with integrity, for the sake of both your personal character and your academic record.

Success in this course is based on the expectation that students will spend, for each unit of credit, a minimum of 45 hours over the length of the course (normally three hours per unit per week) for instruction, preparation/studying, or course related activities, including but not limited to internships, labs, and clinical practica. Other course structures will have equivalent workload expectations as described in the syllabus.
