Master of Science Degree Candidates in Justice Studies

and

Baccalaureate Degree Candidates in Justice Studies and in Forensic Science

Class of 2018

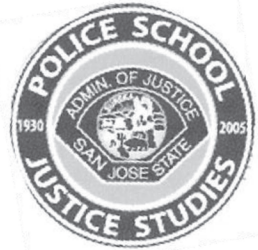

Morris Dailey Auditorium

San José State University

San José, California

Did you know?

The students being honored today are graduating from one of the oldest Justice Studies programs in the United States. The Justice Studies Department of San José State University has a long history of preparing students for a professional career in criminal justice.

In 1930, President T. W. MacQuarrie of San Jose State Teacher's College (below right), was introduced to August Vollmer, Chief of Police of Berkeley, California (below left). At that meeting, they discussed the value of pre-employment police training. As a result of this conversation, on October 2, 1930, a two-year "technical training" course for police officers was initiated in the Social Science Department. The Police Administration Program was the first degree granting program of its kind in the United States.

By 1934 the name of the program had changed to the Police School. Over the years, the curriculum was expanded to cover all stages of the criminal justice system. Since 1970, the curriculum has been further developed to include courses that address a full range of justice issues from family and community violence to discrimination and inequality under the law. The name change to Justice Studies in 2004 signifies the department's more holistic approach to studying justice and the emphasis on academic research in the law and justice fields.

San José State University's Justice Studies program has consistently been rated among the nation's best. The department has a longstanding reputation of academic excellence, and this tradition continues today as our curriculum changes and expands to meet the demands of an increasingly complex, globalized world. Our graduates have gone on to become professionals within the criminal justice system, have careers in non-profit justice related agencies, in human rights organizations and to continue their education in law schools and a wide range of graduate programs.

We are proud of all the alumni who have graduated from our programs over the years and congratulate today's graduates!

Department of Justice Studies

Transforming Justice & Empowering Communities Since 1930

Our Mission

The Department of Justice Studies embraces an interdisciplinary approach to engage students in critical analysis of justice systems in practice, policy, and research. We equip students to be leaders, professionals, and agents of change in justice-related institutions and in diverse local and global communities.

Our Values

Our foremost desire is to foster just societies. We value intellectual curiosity, lifelong learning, honesty, fairness, and ethical consideration of our actions. We embrace diversity, inclusion, civility, and sustainable practices as foundations for strong communities. We commit ourselves to promoting global understanding and respect for cultural differences. We honor our relationships with students, colleagues, alumni, and community partners who work with us to achieve our mission.

We are honored today to welcome our own Mary Juno, Lecturer in our Forensic Science Program as our convocation speaker!

Mary Juno has an MSc in Forensic Science from the University of Strathclyde in Glasgow, Scotland, and a Bachelor of Arts in Biological Anthropology from San Francisco State University. She worked in the crime scene unit of the Oakland Police Department from 2000-08, where she processed hundreds of major crime scenes.

Ms. Juno joined the Justice Studies Department in 2006. With Professor Steven Lee, she helped build the forensic science major at SJSU. She also developed and launched the forensic studies minor and founded the department's journal: Themis: Research Journal of Justice Studies and Forensic Science. This annual publication is written, edited, and published entirely by students under her supervision. Articles from Themis are cited and downloaded worldwide.

Juno (as she is affectionately known throughout the FS program) is known for being personable and approachable. Her classes are both intellectually stimulating and students love her great sense of humor. She has demonstrated a passion and commitment to student success both academically and professionally. She uses her many connections in the field to help her students get internships and ultimately jobs in the field.

Mary's professional affiliations include the American Academy of Forensic Science, California Faculty Association, and the International Association for Identification.

JUSTICE STUDIES TASK FORCE

2018

We congratulate Task Force member Cooper McAnelly, who is graduating today. You have contributed much to our efforts! We wish you the best of luck!

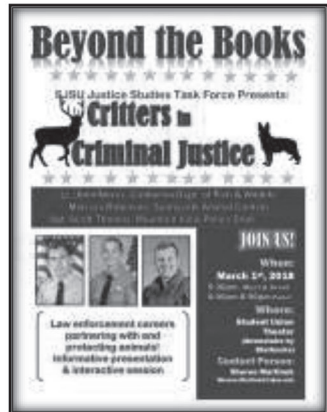

Founded in fall 2010, the Justice Studies Task Force was created to promote camaraderie and collaboration between the student groups in the JS Department. The Task Force is made up of members from the JS student groups, as well as alumni and friends of the department. Today our focus includes getting alumni engaged in a more active role in the department.

The Task Force motto reflects their goal of helping students experience the realities of the careers in the field:

As Real as it Gets!

Task Force events include:
Spring and Fall Convocation
Confidence Challenge
Beyond the Books

MS Criminology, Concentration in Global Criminology

Crime and injustice, from cybercrime, human and drug trafficking, to terrorism, have become global phenomena. To be effective, criminal justice and other agencies must respond to such worldwide problems from a global perspective. The Master of Science in Criminology with a Concentration in Global Criminology offered by the Department of Justice Studies at San José State University is an online program designed to adapt to the ever-changing environment of the justice and legal systems and the field of criminology. It combines advanced study of contemporary international crime and the various responses around the globe with analytic and research techniques used by advanced scholars. It provides an international comparative curriculum that focuses on the development of analytical skills and applied understanding of the legal, theoretical, and practical arenas of crime and justice in a global perspective.

The Master of Science in Criminology with a Concentration in Global Criminology aims to equip Graduates with a truly global outlook on crime, a commitment to international justice, and professional competencies to apply practices from around the globe to meet the unique needs of their communities. The degree program accommodates working professionals who, by and large, have more interest in advancing in their careers and learning subject matter than pursuing higher degrees. However, the program also serves as an advanced learning experience for those interested in becoming professional scholars.

The faculty are internationally renowned scholars whose research and teaching interests include mass-incarceration, prisoner reentry, juvenile justice, policing minority communities, gender and race in crime and punishment, violence, terrorism, immigration, human rights, and cybercrime. The faculty are dedicated to the teacher-scholar model where excellence in the classroom includes engaging students, sparking passions, and take joy from student success. They are experienced online educators who master the challenges of online learning and take pride in leveraging technology to provide instruction that meets or exceeds that in traditional classrooms.

SJSU SAN JOSÉ STATE UNIVERSITY

Special Thanks to the Justice Studies Task Force

Today's convocation ceremony is made possible through the efforts of the Justice Studies Task Force.

The Task Force is made up of representatives from the Justice Studies Student groups, recent alumni of those groups and friends of our department.

The student groups are:

Alpha Phi Sigma (National Criminal Justice Honor Society)

Chi Pi Sigma (Criminal Justice Fraternity)

And the Forensic Science Student group.

These students, friends, and alumni have volunteered many hours to make today's celebration a success. The proceeds from ticket sales go to provide the graduates' gifts, rental of ceremony space, decorations and refreshments.

If funds remain after expenses have been paid, they will be disbursed to the student groups, and are used to support student success.

Keep in Touch with Justice Studies

Stay Connected ...Visit Us ...Partner with Us ... Let us know what you are doing!

YOU could be our next Distinguished Alumnus, presenter at “Beyond the Books” or speaker at the Ann Lucas Lecture Series! An easy way to keep in touch is to join the Alumni Association. If you join San José State University Alumni Association, 50% of your dues come back to the Justice Studies Task Force to support student activities and events within the department!
