

About Us:

Silicon Valley De-Bug is a collective of writers, artists, organizers, and workers based in San Jose, California. We are a project of Pacific News Service, a national news service located in San Francisco. De-Bug started in the Spring of 2000 by reporting on the hidden experiences of working people who were employed as low-wage temporary workers. As we grew as a collective we began exploring all of the issues of our community - in the workplace, schools, streets, relationships, and everything else.

Organizational Structure and Projects:

De-Bug as an organization grows with the interests of our folks. Following the lead of the young adults in the organization we have developed a wide-ranging set of projects that all express the De-Bug principles of community building in different ways. For more information about any of the projects call or e-mail us. (408) 453-2517/ svdebug@newamericamedia.org
